

Communicating by Email: *Options, Tips, and Email Platform Assessment

Planning for email communications

Creating effective communication by email takes some planning. First you have to build a list.

1. Ask to use the MSA's existing list if they have already secured consent from members to send out general news and information affecting medical staff.
2. Build your own list by passing out a sheet to gather emails from physicians at departmental and Facility Engagement meetings. Let them know what they can expect to receive by email (e.g., updates and invitations, no spam).

Below is sample content for a handout sheet and opt-in process.

The new MSA physician society is requesting your permission to email you from time to time with:

- Updates about Facility Engagement activities and progress at the hospital.
  - Invitations to physician events about Facility Engagement.
  - Opportunities to help shape our priorities for funding and activities through surveys or feedback.
- Indicate YES if you agree to receive emails _____
  - What is your preferred email address for this purpose? _____

Developing effective email content

Communicating by email won't be 100% effective overnight. Not all physicians can/will open their emails, and it will take time to build trust and interest in Facility Engagement. Recipients may be more inclined to open emails if:

- It comes from a trusted source – a physician lead, department head, or colleague.
- The subject line is relevant to their needs.
- The content is very short, preferably in bullet form, and in plain language (no jargon) so they don't have to interpret it.
- The content links to or attaches longer content they can read if interested in more information.
- For any request in the email (for feedback, for example), the expectation is easy to understand so they know what they have to do, why, and when.

Options for distributing email

You may choose to distribute your emails yourself or by an online service.

If you do it yourself, it is preferable to send the entire message in the body of the email so physicians do not have to open attachments.

If you choose to subscribe to an online service to send emails, you can take advantage of their feedback and analytics about the effectiveness of your communications. For example, you can see who has and has not opened a message, what emails are bouncing, and what links are the most popular (see figure below).

- Campaign Monitor (used by Doctors of BC groups and Divisions) and Constant Contact are cloud-based services you can subscribe to monthly for a reasonable cost. Both enable you to send emails in bulk, and issue surveys and event invitations for an extra cost. You can add names by cutting and pasting the addresses into the web-based window, or by importing an EXCEL CSV file, and then you can update the list as needed. Both are user-friendly to set up, and both offer a free trial before you decide on purchasing.
- MailChimp is another platform often used because it is free of charge for some templates and functions. However, the Doctors of BC Technology Office has listed some privacy concerns about this platform, noted in the next section for your consideration.

MailChimp: Not recommended

MailChimp

While MailChimp is a popular email marketing tool with free account options, it is not recommended for privacy reasons. The areas of concern in their policies are highlighted below.

- 5. Information We Collect

- Web Beacons: When we send emails to Members, we may track behavior such as who opened the emails and who clicked the links. We do that to measure the performance of our email campaigns and to improve our features for specific segments of Members. To do this, we include single pixel gifs, also called web beacons, in emails we send. Web beacons allow us to collect information about when you open the email, your IP address, your browser or email client type, and other similar details. We also include Web Beacons in the emails we deliver for you. We use the data from those Web Beacons to create the reports about how your email campaign performed and what actions your Subscribers took. Reports are also available to us when we send email to you, so we may collect and review that information.
- Information from Other Sources: We may get more information about you or your Subscribers, like name, age, and use of social media websites, by searching the internet or querying third parties (we'll refer to that information as Supplemental Information).

We use Supplemental Information to develop features like Social Profiles, a tool that helps you learn about your Subscribers and send them more relevant content.

- 6. Use and Disclosure of Your Personal Information

We may use and disclose your Personal Information only as follows:

- To promote use of our Services. For example, if you leave your Personal Information when you visit our Website and don't sign up for any of the Services, we may send you an email asking if you want to sign up. And if you use any of our Services and we think you might benefit from using another Service we offer, we may send you an email about it. You can stop receiving our promotional emails by following the unsubscribe instructions included in every email we send.

- To send you informational and promotional content that you may choose (or “opt in”) to receive. You can stop receiving our promotional emails by following the unsubscribe instructions included in every email.
  - To bill and collect money owed to us. This includes sending you emails, invoices, receipts, notices of delinquency, and alerting you if we need a different credit card number. We use third parties for secure credit card transaction processing, and we send billing information to those third parties to process your orders and credit card payments. To learn more about the steps we take to safeguard that data, see Section 12 below.
  - To send you System Alert Messages. For example, we may let you know about temporary or permanent changes to our Services, like planned outages, new features, version updates, releases, abuse warnings, and changes to our Privacy Policy.
  - To communicate with you about your account and provide customer support.
  - To enforce compliance with our Terms of Use and applicable law. This may include developing tools and algorithms that help us prevent violations.
  - To protect the rights and safety of our Members and third parties, as well as our own.
  - To meet legal requirements like complying with court orders, valid discovery requests, valid subpoenas, and other appropriate legal mechanisms.
  - To provide information to representatives and advisors, like attorneys and accountants, to help us comply with legal, accounting, or security requirements.
  - To prosecute and defend a court, arbitration, or similar legal proceeding.
  - To provide, support, and improve the Services we offer. This includes aggregating information from your use of the Services and sharing such Aggregated Information with third parties.
  - To provide suggestions to you. This includes adding features that compare Members’ email campaigns, or using data to suggest other publishers your Subscribers may be interested in.
  - To transfer your information in the case of a sale, merger, consolidation, liquidation, reorganization, or acquisition. In that event, any acquirer will be subject to our obligations under this Privacy Policy, including your rights to access and choice. We’ll notify you of the change either by sending you an email or posting a notice on our Website.
- 7. Data Collected for and by our Users.
- As you use our Services, you may import into our system personal information you’ve collected from your Subscribers. We have no direct relationship with your Subscribers, and you’re responsible for making sure you have the appropriate permission for us to collect and process information about those individuals. We may transfer personal information to companies that help us provide our Services (“Service Providers.”) All Service Providers enter into a contract with us that protects personal data and restricts their use of any personal data in line with this policy. As part of our Services, we may use and incorporate into features information you’ve provided or we’ve collected about Subscribers as Aggregate Information. We may share this Aggregate Information, including Subscriber email addresses, with third parties in line with the approved uses in Section 6.

Does my email marketing tool need to be located in Canada?

Currently, there is no requirement in PIPA for data related to email marketing to be hosted in Canada. According to the Office of the Information and Privacy Commissioner for B.C., new legislation is being considered which extends some privacy safeguards to third party use of data by recommending that PIPA be amended to provide that:

- a) organizations are responsible for the personal information they transfer to a third party for processing or for providing services to or on behalf of the transferring organization; and
- b) organizations must use contractual or other means to ensure compliance with PIPA, or to provide a comparable level of protection, for personal information they transfer to a third party for processing or for providing services to or on behalf of the transferring organization.

2016 CRTC CASL Guidance on Record Keeping

Under CASL, the onus is on senders of commercial electronic messages (CEMs) to prove consent to send each message. In addition, the CRTC provides guidance on what senders of CEMs should consider keeping a hard copy or an electronic record of, including:

- all evidence of express and implied consent (e.g. audio recordings, copies of signed consent forms, completed electronic forms) from consumers who agree to receive CEMs;
- documented methods through which consent was collected;
- policies and procedures regarding CASL compliance; and
- all unsubscribe requests
